Your home should be a balance of function and art. Everything from furniture, & lighting to pottery & books project and intellectual and emotional sensibility alongside a dose of function and practicality. This is the essence of Jolie Korek & Co. interior design firm.

Jolie elevates the creative process. Through trust and conversations, she creates spaces that are organic to their settings and owners. A natural modernist her interiors and all that comes with them are beautiful, warm, personal and tailored to convey a modern casual harmony.

Korek has been an interior design professional for over 20 years and is an affiliate member of ASID. She has received kitchen design awards from Sub-Zero, Miele, and Thermador. In 2016 she was a finalist in the Hampton Cottage and Garden IGA awards (Innovation In Design Awards). Photographs of her work have appeared in Great American Kitchens, Kitchen Trends magazine, House Beautiful, Architectural Digest, Metropolitan Home, Hampton Cottage and Gardens & most recently NY Spaces. She has participated many times in Holiday House a prestigious design show-house to benefit breast cancer research. Korek created the set and staging for the 2015 motion picture No Letting Go filmed in her home. She received her interior design degree from Parsons School of Design, Manhattan.

This American 19th century Tudor was designed to emulate the English Cotswolds manor homes. Korek's furnishings juxtapose the Cotswold traditional architecture. Through the use of rich materials, she is able to create more depth and comfort in her modern design. In addition, Korek updates antique and mid-century furnishings with modern materials, giving them a highly unique, rather than a manufactured feel. Korek considers the kitchen just another living space in a home, and exhibits that concept flawlessly in this mid-century Tudor. Just as the other rooms are filled with furniture, Korek treats each item in the kitchen as a separate object, giving it a warm and inviting ambiance.
